The rural free delivery has advanced with increased strides. Its extension during the past year lass term carely three times as great as the whole amount of the service previously established. The number of routes in operation and a more experienced force, the work will proceed still more rapidly. At the opening of December 6,000 routes will be running, and under present plans the number will increase by July 1, 1902, to 8,500. rederal land laws, survey of the lands for immediate settlement, a Delegate in Congress without territorial organization, a cable between Alaska and the United States, representation at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition in 1995, the appointment of a Commissioner of Mining, and enactment of a game law for the district.

the deflect has been steadily growing smaller.

Abuses of Second-Class Matter.

In my annual report for 180 I said: "The most urgent heed of the postal service is the rectineation of the enormous wrongs which have grown up in the perversion and abuse of the privilege accorded by law to second-class matter."

Time and experience only emphasize this statement. It is the most urgent need, because it aims at the cita great coordinates with the cita great coordinates. ment. It is the most urgent need, because it alms at the one great overshadowing evil of the service, and because it underlies and overtops all other reform and advance.

Thesply impressed with this conviction, the de-

Theeply impressed with this conviction, the de-partment has taken positive steps, in orders is-sued July 17, 1901, to correct the abuses and ac-complish substantial reform, so far as it is pos-sible by administrative action.

The Government is not only contributing largely and rightly to the distribution of legitimate news-papers and periodicals with a public object and coming within the law, but it is paying a subsidy of $12,000,000 a year for purely private publishing enterprises, run solely for private profit. This wrongful, subsidy would pay substantially the net cost of extending rural free delivery over all the feasible part of the whole country. It would pay, if not all, at least the greater part, of the loss of revenue involved in penny postage on drep letters. It would pay the largest amount that has been proposed to be set apart for the un-building of a great American merchant marine and leave $1,00,000 to spare every year.

The delivery system will then cover more than a quarter of the eligible portion of the country, and at the present rate of establishment the entire area suited to the revice—that is, as estimated, a million square niles of territory, with 21,000,000 of rural residents—will be brought within its scope in less than four years.

The mail will then, if the work goes on, be delivered at every door in the United States, ex-elivered at every door in the United States, except in the most remote, mountainous and sparrely settled sections, and in villages of limited receipts, where the post office is within demand for the service grows with the The demand for the service grows with the public experience of its convenience and utility. The number of applications for new routes at this time last year was 2,100. Those now pending and awaiting action amount to 6,120. Thus the 6,000 routes which have been organized are only the half of the number already saked for.

The policy of rural delivery is no tonger a subject of serious dispute. It has unmistakible vinilicated itself by its fruits. If the financial could account of the first policy of the control of the first policy of the firs
